BREED THEATER.

"The Ranch King's Daughter," Thrilling Western Picture.

At the Breed theater last evening was seen one of the snappiest and best western pictures of the season, and one which for dash, spirit and variety, as well as grandeur of scenery is seldom equalied. The great kidnapping scene is one of rare brilliancy; the ranch owner's daughter herself a famous rider, is captured by a rejected suitor, who is also a rustler, and carried to the Indian stockade, where she is kept prisoner. Being dragged from her pony it immediately starts for the home and arriving riderless, the whole cowboy community puts out in pursuit of her. She is discovered in the stockade and it is indeed a pretty sight as the cowboys stealthly creep in among the sleeping Indians, who are resting in the open air, the whole foreground being one body of fluttering feathers from the chieftains' headgear. The cowgiri is recovered and brought home and the villainous cowboy brought to justice by the maddened pursuers. This is a splendid picture and one that will appeal to everyone from the fact that it is taken on the 101 ranch.

Owing to the urgent requests made to the management, Miss Wolcott will sing Cupid and I for the remainder of the week, instead of The Ivy and the Rose, which she will sing later. She is making a big hit with I'd Rather Be on Old Broadway

To Protect Bird Life.

The Audubon society has begun an agitation for the amendment of the game laws to provide as follows: "Whenever in this chapter the possession of wild birds or parts thereof, or of fish, game, or the flesh of any animal, bird or fish, is prohibited, reference is had equally to such fish, game, wild birds or parts thereof, or fiesh, coming from without the state as to that taken within the state. The fact that any birds or game belong to a different species from that native to the state of New York shall constitute no defense to the possession thereof, provided such birds or game belong to the same family as that protected by this chapter."

the same family as that protected by this chapter."

As the law stands, the possession of bird feathers, wings, etc., for sale is not illegal if it can be shown that they were imported from outside the state. Hence, the traffic in dead birds goes on with little interference. Birds being migratory, it makes little difference whether they are slaughtered within whether they are slaughtered within whether they are slaughtered within this state or elsewhere. The state loses just the same, for the destruction of hird life means a heavy financial loss aside from its humane aspects. Birds are the great natural destroyers of the insect pests that prey upon crops and forests. The only effective way to protect them is to destroy the market for the plumage. That market is centered in New York and it, therefore, rests primarily with the authorities of this state to take the declisive step.—Buffalo Express.

HOME GARMENT MAKING. The Bulletin's Pattern Service.

LADIES' RUSSIAN COAT. Paris Pattern No. 3202 - All Seams

The Russian coat is one of the newest putdoor garments in the spring list, and the one pictured is of extremely good style. It is in 32-inch length and closes at the left side of the front. Belt pieces are attached under the arms, and the neck is completed by a military highband turndown collar. As pictured, it is made of silver green atin faced cloth and trimmed with wide darker green silk braid, a novel lie of the braid giving an attractive inish to the front. Cheviot, serge. Venetian cloth, diagonal cloth in spring weight, silk or covert cloth may be used to develop this design effectively. Wide or narrow braid or Perian banding will trim the garment iffectively.

lian banding will trim the garment iffectively.

The pattern is cut in five sizes—32 to 10 inches, bust measure. The 36 bust tequires for the coat 2% yards of material 54 inches wide, with 6 yards of sraid to trim.

Price of pattern, 10 cents.

CASTORIA The Kind You Have Always Bought Proof of Greatness.

A group of men were seated about a table in the cafe of a western club discussing the rise of the prohibition sentiment, when Mr. Wade Ellis bustled in., "A great man," said one. "A very great man," replied another; "he had John D. Rockefeller on the stand for a whole day and forced John to admit he had made money."—N. Y. Sun.

WASTED TO SKELETON

"My little son, when about a year and a half old, began to have sores come out on his face. I had a physician treat him, but the sores grew worse. Then they began to come on his arms, then on other parts of his body, and then one came on his chest, worse than the others. Then I called another physician. Still he grew worse. At the end of about a year and a half of suffering he grew so bad that I had to tie his hands in cloths at night to keep him from scratching the sores and tearing the fiesh. He got to be a mere skeleton, and was hardly able to walk. "My aunt advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I sent to a drug store and got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of the Ointment and followed directions. At the end of two months the sores were all well. He has never had any sores of any kind since. I can sincerely say that only for Cuticura my child would have died. I used only one cake of Cuticura Soap and about three boxes of Ointment. Mrs. Egbert Sheldon, R. F. D. 1, Litchfield, Conn., Oct. 23, 1909."

FOETRY.

THE "OTHER MAN,"

If every man would do the things the
"other man" should do.
Attack the hoodium, eatch the thiet,
and watch the rascal crew,
we'd have a perfect city, and a perfect
country, too.
A sober land, an bonest land, where men are good and true;
There'd be no more misgovernment see graft nor mobs to rue.
If every man would do the things the
"other man" should do.

If we forgot the talents by the "other man" possessed.

And never thought to envy him the feathers of his nest.

And only thought to grasp from him this chance to do the best.

To dare the deed, and meet the need and stand the fiercer test.

Wo'd have a model country, north, south, and cast and west.

If we forgot the talents by the "other man" possessed.

If every man would think himself to be the "other man."

Become his own reformer on a self-respecting plan, and calmiy, beldly, set himself to do the thing he can.

Nor wait to find some other chap to push into the van.

The world's entire iniquity we'd push beneath the ban.

If every man would think himself to the "other man."
